The Department of Psychiatry at the University of Toronto is pleased to endorse this inaugural training course, Psychiatric Dimensions of Disasters.

It provides a unique opportunity to train in the psychiatric care of people affected by disaster. Given our uncertain global climate, it is more important than ever that we enhance our clinical capacity to help disaster victims and their communities.

I encourage you to take advantage of this training and advance your ability to reduce, treat and prevent post-disaster mental illness.

Sincerely,

Benoit H. Mulsant, MD, MS, FRCPC
Professor and Chair
